

Free live music & workshop / demo series

24th May 2 - 3.30pm

Bartholomew

Electronic composer
& creative technologist

Catford Library

FREE ENTRY to all events
Book online

14th June 1 - 3pm

Kate Arnold

Medieval hammered dulcimer strings / vocals / live looping

DeptfordLounge

28th June 1 - 3pm

Jo Quail

Cellist, live loop composer
& sound designer

Catford Library

5th July 1 - 3pm

Lia Mice

Catastrophphone
- self-invented large
electronic instrument

Deptford Lounge

chaostheorymusic.co.uk
libraries.lewisham.gov.uk

Lewisham Libraries and Chaos Theory present

Echoes Off

The Pages

Supported using public funding by
ARTS COUNCIL ENGLAND

“I think this is an incredible initiative. I’m a big fan of experimental and improvised music, and bringing it into these accessible spaces is such a great idea, especially at a time when other venues traditionally associated with it (Iklectik, Horse hospital) are defunct or under pressure. Very impressed all round.”

“Really good to have events like this in a library as only place which is truly accessible to all community.”

“This was so interesting!
Learnt so much about medieval history and music.”

“Having experimental musicians in a calm and friendly environment, during the day time, so that's really accessible to me in many ways.”

“Something that was so fantastic about this project was the diverse audience who attended the event. The ages of people in attendance ranged from six to 80, and all ages in between including young people. I am fully in support of free community events held during the day as this one was, as events like these provide cultural experiences for those who may not be able to attend other events due to finances, health, caring duties, or work schedules.”